Introduction

The Internal Complaints Committee (ICC) of Madanapalle Institute of Science and Technology successfully organized a storytelling session focusing on Handling Uncomfortable Situations. The session aimed to enhance students' and faculty members' ability to navigate challenging situations through narrative-based learning.

Objective of the Program

The storytelling session was designed to:

- Help participants understand and manage uncomfortable situations effectively.
- Enhance problem-solving skills through real-life and fictional storytelling.
- Promote empathy and awareness of ethical behavior in academic and professional spaces.
- Encourage open discussions about social and workplace challenges.

Session Highlights

The session, led by Dr. K.V. Geetha Devi, incorporated engaging storytelling techniques to address various themes related to handling difficult scenarios. The key highlights included:

- Narrative-Based Learning: Participants were engaged through compelling stories illustrating real-life uncomfortable situations.
- Interactive Discussions: Each story was followed by group discussions, encouraging critical thinking and reflection.
- Moral and Ethical Lessons: The stories emphasized the importance of ethical behavior, respectful communication, and proactive problem-solving.
- Personal Experiences: Some participants shared their own experiences and discussed how they overcame similar challenges.

Key Takeaways

Participants gained valuable insights, including:

- The role of empathy and perspective-taking in handling conflicts.
- The importance of remaining calm and assertive in difficult situations.
- Understanding support systems, such as ICC, for grievance redressal.
- The significance of storytelling as a tool for learning and personal growth.

Outcome of the Program

As a result of this session:

- Attendees developed a deeper understanding of how to handle uncomfortable situations effectively.
- Students expressed increased confidence in seeking support when needed.
- The interactive approach fostered a more open and inclusive discussion on campus safety and ethics.
