MITS Social Responsibility Club (MSR) organized a MITS Radio Station Awareness Program on 20th December 2025 as part of its continuous efforts toward community engagement and rural development.

WELCOME ADDRESS

The program was conducted in nearby villages of Madanapalle with the primary aim of creating awareness about the MITS Community Radio Station and its role in disseminating useful educational, social, and public welfare information to rural populations. In rural areas, access to digital platforms is often limited, making radio one of the most effective and accessible communication tools. Recognizing this, the MSR Club took the initiative to educate villagers about the importance of community radio and how it can serve as a reliable source of information and social empowerment.

OBJECTIVES OF THE PROGRAM

The main objectives of the MITS Radio Station Awareness Program were:

- To create awareness about the MITS Community Radio Station among rural communities.
- To explain the role of community radio in spreading educational, health-related, agricultural, and social information.
- To encourage villagers to actively listen to and participate in community radio programs.
- To strengthen the connection between the institution and the surrounding rural society.
- To promote social responsibility and outreach activities among student volunteers.

During the awareness program, MSR student volunteers interacted directly with villagers and explained the concept and functioning of the MITS Community Radio Station. The volunteers described the various types of programs broadcast through the radio station, including:

- Educational programs for students
- Health and hygiene awareness talks
- Agricultural guidance for farmers
- Information on government schemes and social welfare initiatives
- Programs focusing on women empowerment, youth development, and local culture

The team explained how community radio gives a voice to local people and allows them to share their concerns, experiences, and ideas. Pamphlets and verbal explanations were used to ensure clear understanding among villagers of all age groups.

The villagers actively participated in the discussions and showed great interest in learning about the radio station. Many residents shared their views and asked questions regarding the timing of broadcasts and types of programs aired. The interactive nature of the session helped build trust and encouraged villagers to see the radio station as a useful and reliable source of information. The program created a positive impact by improving awareness and motivating the rural community to make use of community radio services.

Vote of thanks

The program concluded with a vote of thanks delivered by Mr. B.S.H. Shayeez Ahamed, Faculty Coordinator of the MSR Club. He expressed his sincere gratitude to the MITS Management and Principal for their constant encouragement and support. He also thanked the student volunteers and villagers for their active participation, which made the awareness program meaningful and successful.
